Wetaskiwin Wins Championship of Triangular Circuit

Wetaskiwin captured the championship in the triangular hockey league here Thursday night, when they defeated Leduc by a score of 3-2. As each team had won a game in the play-off each player on the ice exerted himself to the limit, and it was an exceptionally fine game from a spectator's standpoint. Close checking featured the play, and all goals with the exception of Watson's solo effort were made at close range. The two referees, Rusty Lynn of Leduc and Wardy Somers of Wetaskiwin, kept the game well in hand, and only two penalties were handed out, J. Madukil and J. Watson both being sent to the cooler in the first period. The first period was scoreless, while in the second stanza Kordybacha found the net for Leduc after ten minutes play, and Abousafy and Farewell scored for the locals. In the last period, J. Watson did some beautiful stick handling, and was rewarded by securing a tally, and a few minutes later, P. Madukil beat the Wetaskiwin goalie with a close in shot. The players were:

Leduc—Woods; Ego and Robertson; P. Madukil; J. Madukil; Bonin, Kowal, Kordybacha, and Mullen.

Wataskiwin—Tamtaylor; Watson and Neil; B. Watson, Farewell, Mernier, Abousafy, Greiner.

1700 BOYS, GIRLS IN ALBERTA JOIN FARM SOCIETIES

Approximately 1700 farm boys and girls were engaged in camp club work in the province last year, according to the annual report of the provincial department of agriculture.

During the past three years the projects have been in operation, consisting of grain clubs, swine clubs and calf clubs. Some extension of the work is being considered for the coming year it was reported.

A recent analysis of farm club work in Canada showed that Alberta stands third among provinces in the number of boys and girls in club work, per 1,000 population. This growth has taken place during the past few years. Nova Scotia stands at the top of the list with 6.5 per cent per 1,000 population; New Brunswick and Manitoba second with 3.4 per cent each, and Alberta third with 2.2 per cent.

Grain clubs alone in Alberta last year totalled 47, with nearly 800 members. More than 500 of these were in wheat clubs, which produced a total of 43,000 bushels of improved seed wheat and captured one Canadian championship at the Royal Winter Fair of Toronto.

Thirty-seven boys belonged to oat clubs and produced 3,000 bushel of seed, and furnished several prize-winning samples from second to fifth places at Toronto, during the winning of Peter Sebastian, aged 18 years, Wembley, new oak champion for the province. There were also 15 alfalfa clubs with 202 members.

Thirty-two swine clubs operated last year, with 800 members. Twelve clubs produced 1,000 hogs in a carl competition, grading 37 per cent select, compared with the provincial average for hog marketings of less than seven per cent. There were nine calf clubs and seven sheep clubs, which were just recently organized.

REPORTS QUALITY OF BEEF HIGHER

Edmonton, March 4.—Substantial improvement in the quality of beef has been made through the recently established red label beef feeding system whereby approximately 2,700 cattle are on feed during the present season, under the direct supervision of the provincial department of agriculture, according to information given in the legislature by Hon. George Headley, minister of agriculture, in reply to questions of H. J. Montgomery (Lib.). Wetaskiwin.

Mr. Headley stated the Federal government had been successful in securing a reduction in freight and general charges on the export cattle rates. Plans were under way which are designed to provide a steadier volume of trade, the minister said.

A joint federal and provincial policy had recently been adopted which provided for the distribution of forage crop seeds at 50 per cent of their wholesale price, Mr. Headley stated. During the past season forage crop seeds were distributed to 950 persons, who were chiefly members of boys' and girls' farm clubs.

ALBERTA-MADE BRIDGES BOUGHT BY GOVERNMENT

Edmonton, March 5.—All bridges purchased by the provincial government during the present fiscal year ending March 31 next were made in this province, it was stated by Hon. O. L. McPherson, in replying to a question submitted in the house.

For the fiscal year ended March 31, 1931, 26 structural steel or iron bridges, were constructed by the order of the provincial government, of which 17 were made in the province. In the fiscal year previous, 33 bridges were ordered and 11 of that number made within the province.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET

A happy hearted gathering of dads and lads gathered on Friday night about the dinner tables spread in the social rooms of the United Church. It was the Taxis Boys' annual Father and Son banquet, and, of course, the mother had no small part in it for the bounty and variety of food, and also the beauty of the decorative tables. Medasmes East, Sharlow, Lord and Vars were the Mothers' committee.

Mr. Gordon East acted as toastmaster and Mr. N. MacEachern as sign leader, with Miss Redden at the piano. Songs, stories, speeches and frolics were on the program. The customary toasts were presented and the stated speaker was Principal T. Fletcher, who took as his topic "Vocational Guidance." He gave a comprehensive outline of what modern psychology has disclosed as signs posts along the way to finding the right boy for the right job. Below zero outside, but inside everybody happy in the Taxis Square on Fathers' Night.

LIBRARY NOTES

A great number of fine travel books will be found in the public library, such as Sir Harry Johnston's "Pioneers in West Africa"; Archibald Forder's "In and About Palestine"; Several recent publications on India are also on hand.

Those who wish to study the country nearer home will find A. L. Burr's "Romance of the Prairie Province"; a most interesting book. Professor Burr is the head of the Department of History in the University of Alberta, his book being published a little over one year ago.

"The Loot of Cities" by Arnold Bennett is a standard work, giving the adventures of a millionaire in search of joy, and other stories.

A very popular book that is read a great deal, is a story of the South Seas entitled "The Great Horn Spoon" by Eugene Wright.

As spring will be arriving shortly a suitable book to read is "The Enchanted April" by the author of "Elizabeth and Her German Garden".

The story begins in a women's club in London on a February afternoon, a delightful novel and should appeal to all who appreciate flowers and sunshines.

Novel reading relaxes the mind and body, is a happy inexpensive diversion indulged in by kings and queens, lords and commoners. Leave the humdrum things behind, seek glorious adventure — between two pieces of pasteboard. If you love reading, the world is yours.

LOAN OF $15,000 MADE TO WHOLESALE ASSOCIATION

Edmonton, March 4.—The sum of $15,000 has been loaned to the Alberta Co-operative Wholesale Association by the wheat board trust fund trustees, according to information given the house by Hon. George Headley, minister of agriculture.

Of the sum loaned, $772 has been repaid. On the balance due, there is security in the form of a debenture of the association covering its assets. While recovery of the whole advance is doubtful, it is expected that further payments will be received.

PLANS FOR "DOLE" OF WHEAT EMBARRASS PRESIDENT HOOVER

Washington, March 5.—Senate and house agreed Friday on the bill to distribute 40,000,000 bushels of wheat among the nation's poor. The measure now goes to the White House for the president's signature.

If made law, the bill will take the wheat from farm board holdings without payment to the board. Chairman Stone of the farm board strenuously protests against this. He affirms the board was created and financed to assist co-operation and aid farmers, not to supply a dole to people in distress.

Alberta Legislative Assembly

(Interesting news letter from our Correspondent in the Press Gallery, Parliament Buildings.)

Edmonton, March 5.—The sudden and totally unexpected collapse of the budget debate in the legislature naturally set all the political wiseacres talking. At first they wondered just what it meant. Was it political tactics on the part of the opposition or was the government playing some game of its own?

Out of the mass of conjectures that sprang up has emerged a general opinion that considerable weakness was shown by the administration in not putting up at least one member of the treasury benches to reply to onslaughts of the Liberals through W. R. Howson and the attack of the Conservatives through D. M. Duggan.

The government claims that there was no need to prolong the debate as all the items could be discussed when the estimates came up for consideration; also that the financial field could be covered when the income tax bill is before the house. The course followed, they contend, had saved several days.

George H. Webster, Liberal leader, expressed considerable surprise that no one minister had seen fit to make any reply to the criticisms leveled at the government's financial methods.

"As both Mr. Howson and Mr. Duggan had spoken," said Mr. Webster, "we naturally expected some member of the government would reply. I myself was not in the house at the time, but was at my hotel preparing my address, which I expected to deliver Wednesday afternoon, confidently expecting the debate would be adjourned at 10 p.m."

Somewhat similar views were expressed by Mr. Duggan, Conservative leader, who thought it was the first time in the history of the house that the budget debate had ended without a closing address by the provincial treasurer.

Before the debate came to an end W. R. Howson, Liberal, D. M. Duggan, Conservative, J. Russell Love, U.F.A., W. Smeaton, Labor, and F. S. Grisdale, U.F.A., had contributed to the discussion.

Mr. Howson put up what Mr. Duggan described as a record speech, talking for nearly three hours. At the close he moved an amendment asking that the estimates be referred back for further reduction and revision with a view to preventing increased taxation.

This amendment on objection by Premier Browne was declared out of order by the Speaker. This ruling was at once challenged by L. A. Glouc, Liberals, Grouard. On a vote being taken the Speaker's ruling was sustained by 39 to 16. Conservatives supported the Liberals.

An amendment moved later by D. M. Duggan asking for the appointment of a budget commission was also defeated by a vote of 40 to 19. Liberals and Independents supported the Conservative amendments.

Mr. Howson, who opened the debate, is said to have made the final speech of his political career, and at its close he was the recipient of congratulations from both sides of the house. The galleries were full when he began the debate and he held his listeners tense throughout.

Mr. Howson declared that the government had gone altogether too far from the idea of government by the people. "We have very largely become the rubber stamp of the cabinet," he declared. "The really important things are done by the executive council and then we are pleased or compelled to approve, ratify and confirm them."

The speaker declared that there was altogether too much revenue both during and between sessions. He instanced the $5,000,000 loan bill which he said was rushed through the house the day before the budget. "It was with the greatest difficulty that we were able to extract from the provincial treasurer any information at all as to what is to be done with this money."

Mr. Howson quoted exhaustively from the estimates and public accounts to prove his contention that the finance policy of the government was entirely unsatisfactory. It was no wonder, he contended, that some members voted to do away with private ownership of land. If this government was kept in power they would get their wish and there would be no need to vote on the question.

He claimed that the government had demonstrated not only its complete lack of business ability, but that it had failed even remotely to consider the welfare of the taxpayers. He pointed out that the provincial treasurer had estimated a deficit of $400,000 instead of $4,000,000. "When with the aid of all his advisers he is nine-tenths wrong, then I say he is not the man to look after the people's money."

The government's policy on guarantees, he claimed, had taught three things: 1. It is a vicious practice to give blanket guarantees; 2. It is no business, in fact inexcusable, to use the public's money or credit without first investigating the risk the public is taking; 3. Trust the people.

In the opinion of Mr. Howson there ought to be a voluntary contribution from salaries by all civil servants, all of the University staff, all of the cabinet ministers and all others connected with the government when such persons were receiving more than $5,000 annually.

Mr. Howson claimed there were civil servants receiving $9,000, $7,000 and $6,500. Each of these should give by way of voluntary contribution the excess of $5,000. The cabinet ministers, he said, received $6,000 plus $2,000 sessional indemnity. He contended that $1,000 should be cut off the salary. Even if the sessional indemnity was cut 10 per cent and the salary was cut to $5,000, this would leave each of the cabinet ministers with an income of $6,500 in cash each year. Civil servants and cabinet ministers were sure of receiving their salary every month and this, in times like these, was a consideration worth while.

Mr. Duggan began the Conservative onslaught with a demand for the appointment of a budget commission that could inquire into the working of all government departments and seek means of balancing the budget without the necessity of increasing taxation.

He explained why the Conservatives had not opposed the $5,000,000 loan bill. He declared that because of the huge amount of unfunded debt hanging over the province like a cloud of deadly army gas, was necessary to take advantage of any reasonable offer to raise money.

The Conservative leader launched into a vigorous attack on the proposed income tax bill, claiming that it would have to be borne chiefly by one class of people. Employees, he declared, would have to bear the lion's share of the burden.

Mr. Duggan asserted that the tax corporations would have the effect of driving dominion-wide organizations out of the province. He believed it would have been preferable to reduce expenditure to meet revenue and should such economies too seriously impair our public services, it would have been better to increase existing imposts rather than resort to the imposition of an income tax.

He claimed the government had failed to create an adequate sinking fund; had yielded to unwarranted demands for guarantees and advances without making provision for losses; had spent $500,000 in excess of estimates instead of reducing expenditures when revenues declined nearly 20,000,000.

Labor's contribution to the debate came from Andrew Smeaton, Lethbridge. He confined his remarks to the provincial government of Alberta an eloquent plea on behalf of the mining industry in general and for the Lethbridge district in particular. He outlined certain proposals as a means of putting back the industry on its feet.

For the government J. Russell Love, Wainwright, delivered a reply to Mr. Howson and Mr. Duggan. He quoted figures with such gatling-gun rapidity that before he had spoken 10 minutes he had his hearers bewildered. His defence of the government's policy was warm, but the breakneck speed at which it was delivered caused it to lose much of its effectiveness.

During the course of his arguments he fell back on quotations from Lord Byron and Lord Lothian, and ended up reciting a whole poem commending the courage of those who struck out along new paths.

Mr. Love claimed that the cost of public services in Alberta for the 1932-1933 fiscal year will be $1,500,000 less than in 1921. He declared this was a record for economy which might well be envied by every government in Canada. He challenged the opposition to name any province that could show a similar record.

Mr. Love asserted that with even the imposition of an income tax Alberta would suffer less from the burden of increased taxation than other provinces of Canada. He quoted figures from the various provinces in support of his contention that Alberta held a very favorable position.

He defended the expenditures of the government item by item, declaring that no one could attack the amount spent for unemployment relief. While $18,500,000 was a large sum to add to the public debt in one year, he defied anyone to point to any item that could have been avoided.

The final contribution to the debate came from F. S. Grisdale, U. F. A. Oils. He did not attempt to deal with the financial problems of the province, but contended himself with dealing with the agricultural situation in Alberta. It was Mr. Grisdale's maiden speech and was well received, albeit it had no relation whatever to the budget.

There still remains a large number of questions outstanding for the government to answer.

Earlier in the week the house spent a great deal of time debating the labor motion for the nationalization of land, banks and other public services. In this talkfest neither Liberals nor Conservatives took part. The treasury benches did and so did their back benches.

It required three divisions in which party lines were discarded before it was finally defeated by a vote of 43 to 9. Supporting the resolution were F. J. White, Calgary (mover), two other labor members and six on the government side. Liberals and Conservatives were opposed.

During the first two divisions cabinet ministers evenly divided as did private members on the U.F.A. side.

J. Russell Love moved that the resolution be referred to the agricultural committee. A point of order was raised by D. M. Duggan on this. On a division this was defeated by 28 to 26. Mr. Love's motion was then voted on and this was defeated by the same vote. And then, after further discussion, the final vote was taken.

While a great deal of sympathy was expressed by most of the U. F. A. speakers for parts of the Labor resolution the majority felt it was going too far along socialistic lines.

Summed up briefly during the week the house gave second reading to the bill validating the agreement with the Federal Government for policing the provinces by the R. C. M. P., accepted a Liberal motion by J. Bowlen for concerns receiving advances or guarantees to submit their annual statements to the house 15 days before the opening of the legislature, defeated a motion of F. R. Falconer, Liberal, Athabasca, to change the ending date of the fiscal year; accepted an amendment moved by George H. Webster, Liberal, leader, to the Provincial Loans Act; opened and closed the budget debate in record time; gave second reading to a private bill on chirropy after dealing a couple of hours in debate during which strong opposition to the measure developed.

There still remains a large number of questions outstanding for the government to answer.

that they know what to do with, just as same as we have here, and they have no place to invest it because no place is safe just now, and so there is no danger of a flight of capital from this country to the United States.

I ought to take the opportunity to point out the Prime Minister perhaps misunderstood the point of the hon. member for Red Deer (Mr. Speakman) when he drew a contrast between one bill which asks for $11,000,000 and another which provides for the cutting of the salaries of the civil servants. The hon. member for Red Deer was not suggesting that there should be a repudiation of the debt, but rather that, without repudiating the obligation, there should be increased taxation upon those who stand to profit by the country fulfilling its obligations. That puts the matter in a very different light.

Another point which might be brought forward in connection with the criticism of the Minister of Finance is that there cannot be much danger of capital fleeing to the United States from Canada when in this country we impose on a million dollar income tax of $362,969, whereas in the United States the income tax on the same income is only $24,000. If capital will not flee when there is a difference of over $120,000 in income taxation on a million dollars, how much of a difference will it flee for, I would like to know? I would like to know just how far we can go safely and still prevent it from fleeing. I would not mind risking going a little further and see what happens.

I think we all appreciate the point taken by the Minister of Finance, that he does not wish to commit the government in anticipation of the budget by stating to what extent the government will consider an increase in taxation in any respect, but I believe that he read the resolution somewhat narrowly, if I may be permitted to say so. It merely asks that the government consider the question that any increase in taxation found necessary should take the form of adjustments in the Income Tax Act, in order that those best able to pay should be the first and most heavily affected. The point to be emphasized is that those who have the highest incomes should be the "first," and they should be asked to pay first because they have the most with which to pay. They also should be the most heavily taxed because they are the best able to pay it. I think the Finance Minister suggested that if part of the resolution had been a little more reasonable, worded the government might have permitted it to go through without committing itself in anticipation of the budget, so therefore I would move, seconded by the hon. member for MacKenzie (Mr. Campbell), that the motion be amended by inserting the word "that" in the fourth line of the last paragraph of the resolution, the words "to the extent found possible."

Amendment (Mr. Irvine) negatived.

LOSSES SUFFERED FROM HIGH WINDS

Considerable damage is reported from the high wind of Friday night, the heaviest losses being those of Jackman & Taylor and C. Hauner, who lost barns with their contents, while a number of granaries were also reported as wrecked.

Dancers at several of the rural schools were unable to leave, and kept the dances going until morning. We are informed also that several parties in cars were forced to park for several hours, as they were unable to see their way in the dust. Some damage is reported to the panes of glass in several cars from the force of the sand, and also to motors from the sand entering the mechanism.—MacLeod Gazette.

Stabilization of Currency Discussed by Wm. Irvine

The following is Hansard's report of an address in the House of Commons by Wm. Irvine, member for Wetaskiwin, on the stabilization of currency:

Mr. William Irvine (Wetaskiwin): I am not sure whether I have the right now to ask the minister a question, but I wanted to ask him this question before he sat down. I will put the question and he need not answer it if he does not desire. I understand him to say that I had advocated during the investigation of 1924, I think it was, that Canada should pay her national debt by employing the printing presses. Does the minister mean that I advocated that? If so, I should like to know on what page of the evidence it is to be found because I did not recall even hearing of such a thing.

Mr. Stevens: I said it was advocated, without referring at all to my hon. friend.

Mr. Irvine: I was never that foolish, openly anyway; I might have been foolish enough to think it inwardly but never foolish enough to utter it. I have not before me a copy of the amendment which the minister has moved, but as it was able to understand from his reading it, I do not see why the house should not give it the fullest possible support. When I drafted the amendment which I moved to the original motion I was told by the hon. member for Red Deer (Mr. Spinkman) that it would be open to the very objection which the minister has raised. I realized that it would be open to that objection but I moved it nevertheless because I could not conceive how there could be any stabilization of our currency on a gold basis except by putting a few number of grains of gold into the pound sterling or the dollar. There may be some other method of remaining on the gold basis, but if there is I have never heard of it.

The minister said that some of us or some of those who think they are economists have said that they regard trade as being better and that we should go back to the barter system. I have never thought of shipping a carload of eggs across the Atlantic to return for a cargo of automobiles. I never thought of trading in that crude way, but it just happens that I have before me an excellent pamphlet published by H. Mitchell, M.A., professor of political economy at McMaster University. It is entitled "The Money Crisis" and in its interpretation of money it says:

"Our money economy is really no more than a refined state of barter."

Apparently there are some real economists who hold that view. They do not contend that we exchange goods for goods directly but they say that money itself is a means by which barter is made possible in our highly complicated society.

Before I sit down, I should like to refer to the remarks just made by the right hon. the leader of the opposition. The right hon. gentleman says that he is willing to support the measure if it means merely that it will be talked about at the Imperial conference, but if there is to be action, no sir—no support for action. We have not as much time as the right hon. gentleman imagines, we have to deal with this matter. The people of Canada are looking to the Imperial conference for definite action; the people of the British Commonwealth of nations expect great things from this conference. I will go as far as to say that if great things are not accomplished, it will be a bad thing for Canada and the rest of the British nations. In my opinion this is the most important thing upon which the government has touched, and yet the Liberal party, supposed to be making a bid for the support of the people at the next election, claiming to be able to lead us out of this terrible morass in which we find ourselves, raises opposition to the right hon. gentleman's proposal.

In regard to economic unity, the right hon. gentleman says: If you are going to advocate economic unity, why not wait until you have an interpretation of economic unity to which the house will agree? In eleven years I have never seen this house agree to anything, and if before we can do anything we have to wait for an interpretation of economic unity which will meet with the agreement of this house, we are going to wait a long long time before we have economic unity in this or any other country.

I congratulate the minister on bringing this amendment forward. We are not expecting that a question of this importance will be settled completely and absolutely at one conference, but we do want some action. Are we to wait to wait until this house comes to an unanimous opinion upon some policy not yet proposed? What will our farmers in the west say to the leader of the opposition? They want to sell their products in England next month, but they cannot do it because the currency is so unstable, and the exchange so adverse. They want action, and the Imperial conference affords the only opportunity for such action to be taken. I think it is the duty of every hon. member of this house who wants immediate action on a question of this importance to support this resolution.

offer. He endeavours to make his opposition as effective as possible in trying to prevent the consideration of this matter at the Imperial conference. He asks for a definite and complete statement of the exact thing which is going to be put up to the conference. As I understand him, he contends that a notice of motion should have been given to a question of such importance. The motion to which the amendment has been moved has been on the order paper for many days, it was introduced by a member of the Liberal party and ample opportunity was afforded every hon. member to acquaint himself with the subject matter and to be prepared to deal intelligently with it. I suggest to the leader of the opposition that with a question of this importance confronting the public mind, and in the face of economic conditions which exist in the world today, he should have spent his time last summer studying this matter and should have come to this house with a real policy and given real leadership in the carrying into effect of that policy.

Mr. Pouliot: Is the hon. member suggesting that the leader of the opposition resign in his favour?

Mr. Irvine: I cannot hear what my hon. friend is saying—

An hon. Member: You are not missing anything.

Mr. Irvine:—but if it is anything like his usual remarks, it does not matter whether or not I hear him. Your Colds doubly dangerous NOW!

SATTERED cases of "flu" are reported in many sections of the Dominion. Coming in the season when pneumonia takes its heaviest toll, this makes colds—so prevalent here now—doubly dangerous. For, so often, colds pull down body resistance and pave the way for "flu" and pneumonia.

1 DON'T WAIT FOR A COLD TO DEVELOP.

At the first sign of stiffness or irritation in the nose or throat, snuff some Vicks VapoRub up the nose. Repeat as needed during the day. This will often check a cold at the start.

2 IF A COLD HAS DEVELOPED, don't neglect it.

At bed-time, rub the throat and chest vigorously with Vicks, spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. If the head is clogged with mucus or there is much coughing, melt a spoonful of Vicks in boiling water and inhale the steaming medicated vapors.

(If possible, rest in bed until the cold is broken. This helps to maintain body resistance and to throw off the cold more quickly).

Don't Take Chances With Colds Now!

NAVARE

Considerable interest was shown throughout the whole neighborhood in the special meeting of the electors of the Bulyea School District held in the school last Saturday. The appointment of John Rudy as trustee at the annual meeting held January 9, was not in accordance with the School Act, 1931, so the meeting on Saturday was for the purpose of electing a trustee to fill the vacancy created when Mr. Rudy's term expired Dec. 31, 1931. There was a record attendance, a notable feature being the large number of ladies present. W. Herbert was chairman and W. Pattison secretary. Jack Ware and John Rudy were nominated for the position of trustee. Five or six other men were nominated, but each of these promptly withdrew. A ballot vote was taken for the first time in the history of the school. When the ballots were counted, the result was found to be 26 to 14 in favor of Mr. Ware, who was immediately declared elected. Mr. Ware is a capable young man and has the best wishes for every success in his new position.

Leonard Dorchester had a painful accident last week when a horse fell on him, breaking his leg. This is particularly unfortunate, as it is the third time Leonard has suffered a broken leg.

Mrs. A. B. Nelson and son, Bryan, of Twin Creek, are spending a few days of this week at the home of Mrs. Peter Nelson.

At the meeting of the Bulyea School Board held in the school on Monday afternoon, Jack Ware was elected chairman. P. Hoyle resigned as trustee and treasurer; so another special electors' meeting is scheduled for Saturday, March 19th, for the purpose of electing a trustee to fill the vacancy.

Miss Berthanna Revis is in Wetaskiwin this week assisting at the Thos. Marsden home during Mrs. Marsden's illness.

H. T. Thorsen is disposing of his farm implements and livestock at an auction sale next week.

G. W. Malmas left on Wednesday morning for Saskatoon, where he will be a delegate at the Lutheran Convention.

BITTEN LAKE

Mrs. Edwin Johnson returned home Saturday from her two week visit in Red Deer.

Mrs. A. Micklan and small daughter went to Edmonton Monday morning, where she will visit her folks for a few days.

Mrs. A. Miller of Wetaskiwin, and son David, is spending a week at Mr. and Mrs. Wickland's.

Ewald Elger is now settled on his farm west of the lake, while Henry Wickland has moved on the one E. Elger just vacated.

George Oakna, who has been with S. Morita the past three years, left on Saturday for Calgary, where he has secured a job in a hotel.

McNary Bros. have rented H. E. Heighington's farm for this season.

Ponoka were in town Saturday to meet Mrs. Pocha's sister, who will visit with her for a while.

W. L. Joiner has also returned to Wetaskiwin.

John Thrasher, Jr., is busily engaged repairing sledges. He has a number of willing assistants.

The dance at Seattle Community hall on Friday evening was well attended, several of our young folk from Winfield being present. All report a swell time!

TOWNLAKE

H. B. Francis travelled west the first of the week, stopping at S. Handbury's a night and visiting B. Champ the next day.

Several from Townlake attended the dance at Knob Hill on Friday night. They report a good crowd.

Many Townlakers attended the U. F. A. meeting Saturday night, in spite of the cold. All had a good time.

FALUN

(Intended for last week)

Mrs. J. M. Jones entertained at a "500" party last Saturday evening. Luncheon was served at midnight and a good time was reported by all.

Little Jackie Steedman was the winner of the lovely fruit cake raffled off by the Live Wires at Lone Ridge Hall on February 29th. Jackie has been ill with a slight touch of pneumonia, but is now convalescing nicely.

Several children have been absent from school due to colds and flu, which has come on after the recent warm weather.

The Falun W.I. met at the home of Mrs. H. Ness on Saturday, March 5, with a large number of members and several visitors. The roll call was answered by the most useful thing around the house. Luncheon was served.

The many friends of Mrs. Leavenworth are glad to know that she is improving from her recent illness, although she is still confined to her bed.

WINFIELD U. F. A.

The regular business meeting of Winfield U.F.A. was held last Saturday night at Drader's mill. A very successful meeting was held, a good sized crowd being in attendance.

Four new members signed up, bringing the membership to twenty-five, more promising to join later. Two short talks were given, Mr. Chris Engedahl on "System of Marketing in Denmark" and Mrs. Martin on "Our U.F.A. and some of its objects." After the meeting the evening was spent in music, games and dancing.

The business meetings are held the first Saturday of each month, with a social held about the middle of each month. Mr. Drader has kindly loaned one of his buildings for the purpose until arrangements can be made for a regular meeting place.

WINFIELD

This unusually cold weather for March is not exactly appreciated. The roads are rough under the coating of snow owing to the thaw of a week or more ago. Some of the trucks which have been hauling lumber from Buck Lake have left.

Eric Johnson is back again in Winfield after an absence of a few weeks spent in the city.

Mr. McElroy spent the weekend at his home here.

Mrs. Clarke has returned after an absence of a few days.

Geo. Jefferson returned to Rimby on Friday's train.

Mrs. Pocha and son Stanley, of Ponoka Herald.

MADELINE'S PARTY DRESS

"Jerry, I can't go."

"Why, Madeline, we've been counting on that dance for weeks."

"Yes, I know Jerry — you won't mind much, will you? I'm sorry, really, if you care. You could take — Helen," she said hesitatingly.

"No, Madeline, I want you. Not that's it's any of my business, but what's wrong dear?"

Madeline burst into tears at the kind solicitation in Jerry's voice.

"Oh, Jerry, I didn't mean to tell you, but I've nothing fit to dance in; you mustn't be ashamed of me."

"Madeline, you are lovely in this thing. Go the way you are this minute."

"Oh Jerry," she laughed, "you are so dear, but don't you see how funny I would look in a blue print house dress, with all those silk chiffons? I have been laid off twelve days this month without pay. I expected to earn enough in commissions, so that, with my discount in the dress department, could get a party dress; but I just out of luck, that's all."

"Now, little girl, just forget it."

Jerry took his own handkerchief and wiped Madeline's eyes. "You're good enough for me in whatever you have; we are going."

Waving a good-bye, he called back:

"Till Saturday, Lina."

Madeline set about getting her clothes in order to don hurriedly in the morning.

"Jerry does care, doesn't he? Well, it is worth something to know that," she soliloquized.

In the press shop the next day where she was employed, a shipment of goods arrived. Madeline was assigned to the stock room to mark dresses.

Her heart ached afresh as she realized how futile her wish. As she lifted one particularly attractive dress from the box and held it up, the other girls gasped—"how lovely!" that was made for Madeline! She looked at the size. Yes, it was her size. Impulsively she reached for, and attached to the price tag with a mark several dollars lower than the one she had used.

By the price tag she knew on just which rack it would be hung. On returning to the department she slipped off the hanger, folded it up quite small, held out the tag to the department manager, and said:

"What discount for me, please?"

Hurriedly the department head said 20 per cent—and made out and on K.D.'s check.

That night Madeline tried on the dress and was delighted. She stilled her conscience and Saturday evening when Jerry called she was radiant.

"Madeline, you are glorious."

"Nonsense, Jerry, that is because you like me a little."

"A little! I'm dazzled with you, I'm thrilled."

When he brought her home that night he said:

"Wear this again tomorrow, dear."

"All right, Jerry," she agreed, but left alone, she became uneasy and worried. Sleep would not come. She knew she had done something wrong and censured herself for her weakness.

Recalling the teachings of her mother, far away, in her small country home, she knew for a certainty that to keep the dress would be impossible. Restlessly she tossed for a while, then got up and packed the dress carefully in its box ready to return on Monday morning.

Though somewhat relieved after that, she was concerned about what to say to Jerry.

She could tell him it didn't fit, yet she knew it did, and he had thought it perfect. She might say it was damaged, but that would be adding a lie to her other sin. She could tell him she couldn't afford it. That would be the truth, but he would think her unscrupulous to order a dress to wear on an occasion and then return it. No, she would be ashamed to do that.

Her heart beat a swift tattoo when his bounding step approached and falteringly she went to the porch to meet him.

"Hello, Madeline, dearest, where is the idolized gown today?" She did not answer, and Jerry said, "Come let's take it for a walk this beautiful afternoon."

"No, Jerry, I'm not wearing it today, nor ever. You'll never see it again and maybe you won't even want to see me again, either. Jerry, I cheated and I've got to square up," she hurried on to say. "I won't dishonor even if I lose you."

Madeline rushed into the house, her pent emotions loosed.

"Madeline, dearest," Jerry said as he took her and swept her into his arms, "how brave you are. There is no virtue in being good when one is not tempted, but you have overcome your temptation."

"I could not love you, dear, so much loved I not honor more."

Silently he cupped his hands to frame her face, and smiling up at her, she said softly, "Jerry, I'm glad it happened."

CHEESE DISHES ARE GOOD TO SERVE DURING LENT

By Barbara B. Brooks

Please do not let the title of this article imply to you that cheese dishes are good only during Lent for that certainly is not true. Cheese dishes are good at any time but they are especially appropriate during the forty days of pre-Easter eating because they are effective meat substitutes. Of course eggs and fish are also substitutes, but they are not as versatile as cheese, the uses of which have so exploited that it now fits comfortably into any course or for onionsoup.

For the beginning of the meal cheese may be used in tantalizing little canapés, in cheese sticks or cheese biscuits. It may even be in the soup! A clear consomme served with cubes of cheese is delicious. The warmth of the liquid softens the cheese into its creamiest and most cheese. Grated American or Parmesan cheese is the ideal accessory for onion soup.

Onion and Cheese Soup

3 small onions (sliced), 2 table spoons fat, 2-3 tablespoons flour, 1½ pints hot stock, 2-3 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 6 rounds of buttered cheese, 2 tablespoons grated cheese.

Brown the onion in the fat; add flour and cook 1 minute. Pour on stock, add salt and pepper, cook 10 minutes. Place a round of toast in the bottom of each soup plate and pour the soup over it. Sprinkle the cheese over the top and serve very hot.

For the main course there are the two rarebits, plain and tomato. There is a glorified rarebit made with Bermuda onions. The onions are cooked in very little water and the cheese is added and allowed to melt in the warmth of the cooked onions.

What a savory dish to serve on crisp toast points. It will be hard to say that cheese should always be cooked by a low temperature. A high temperature toughens it and makes it less digestible and less palatable.

The combination of macaroni, spaghetti or rice and cheese may be suitable for both meat and potatoes.

Cheese Cake

1/4 cup butter, ¾ cup sugar, 5 egg yolks, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 tea spoon grated lemon rind, 1 pound cottage cheese, ¾ cup flour, ½ cup cream, 3 egg whites.

Cream the butter and add the sugar.

When thoroughly mixed add the egg yolks, beating in each yolk separately. Add the lemon juice and

O.K. the check.

WEEKLY STOCK MARKET REPORT

The following is a report from the Edmonton Stock Yards, as supplied to The Times for the week ending March 8th:

Receipts: Cattle, 405; Calves, 88; Hogs, 2132; Sheep, 57.

The receipts so far this week have been decidedly on the light order. Trading in consequence has been slow, with buyers showing a somewhat indifferent attitude. Sales so far this week indicate that prices remain about steady and unchanged considering the quality of the offerings, but it is noticeable that buyers are bearish in their ideas. They are grading somewhat closer, especially on heavy cows. The following are the prices:

Good to choice fed calves selling at $5.00 to $5.50, mediums $4.00 to $4.75. The general run of good butcher steers $4.50 to $4.75, really choice would bring a little more; mediums $4.25 and common to fair $2.75 to $3.75. Good handwyed butchers' helpers $4.50 to $4.75, mediums $4.00 to $4.25, good heifers $3.75 to $4.00, really choice $3.25 to $3.50. Good to choice butchers' helpers $3.00 to $3.50, common and cutters $3.00 to $3.75, and bulls $2.50 to $2.75.

Calf market fairly steady, good to choice kinds $6.00 to $7.00, common to medium from $4.00 to $5.50.

Hog market is uncertain as prices in the East have weakened somewhat. Yesterday, Monday, carloads still sold at $3.65 for the hams fed and watered. Today no carloads on offer. Trucked in are selling at $3.50 for the hams, with selects bringing a premium of 50¢ per hundred and butchers discounted 50¢ per hundred. Cuts on the off grade hogs remain the same. Heavies discounted 75¢ per hundred, extra heavies 75¢ per hundred, No. 1 sows discounted 75¢ per hundred, Nos. 2 sows discounted $1.00 per hundred, roughs discounted $1.25 per hundred, stags discounted $2.00 per hundred.

There have been insufficient sheep to make a market to establish a price. The general run of lambs are quoted from $4.50 to $5.00. Choice light would bring a little more. Lambs $3.50 to $4.00 and ewes $2.50 to $3.50.

Some things are FACTS! Some things can't be denied. Some things are sure, certain and altogether sane. And here is one of those things:

the year 1932 is not going to dump any sudden wealth into your lap!

THOSE WHO MAKE MONEY from business in 1932 are going to EARN IT---not by playing a hunch, not by following tips, and not by sitting tight. To make money in 1932 YOU HAVE GOT TO SELL MERCHANDISE. And you've got to sell a lot of it. That's another fact!

Selling will NOT be easy. But the present year can be a GOOD year for you; a PROFITABLE year; a year of PROGRESS. But it's going to take some STRAIGHT - FROM - THE - SHOULDER selling!

WE'VE GOT TO HIT THE LINE HARD!! It doesn't take the seventh son of a seventh son to figure out that business is not coming without REAL effort. But there is always some business for those who have the energy and courage to GO AFTER IT! This is old stuff—but TRUE as HOLY WRIT.

More and more people are coming to regulate their shopping by the store ads. More and more people are getting out of the habit of going to "the nearest place" or the place they have usually visited for certain purchases.

More and more people are coming to decide things from reading the ads.—and depend upon the news and the facts contained in the ads. for guidance in planning purchases.

More than ever before will your advertising be the test by which all else shall stand or fall—so plan it liberally, plan it on winning lines.

The people of the extensive district in which The Times circulates cannot be as effectively or as economically reached by any other medium or method of advertising as by the columns of this paper.

The merchants of no other town in Alberta have the facilities of reaching the residents of the district they serve equal to those provided by the extensive circulation of The Times.

If you want to reach the people use The Times, the best advertising medium in the district!

Use The Times Want Ad. column

Aunt Sidonia, an Alabama negress, was a great advocate of the rod as a help in child rearing. As a result of an unmerciful beating which she gave to her youngest and "cornered" son, he was brought into court one day by outraged neighbors. The Judge, after giving her a severe lecture, asked if she had anything to say. "Just one thing, Judge," she replied. "I wants to ax you a question. Was you ever the mother of a fucking wretched culid child?"

More than 40,000,000 workers are today covered by compulsory unemployment insurance systems in ten countries.
